SANTA ROSA POLICE CHIEF DIES OF WOUND

SANTA ROSA, July 17.—UP—“Two Gun” Al Chamberlain's brief six-shooter excursion into self-made law enforcement had ended in the death of Police Chief Charles O'Neal, 38, today.

Chamberlain, 72, shot O'Neal without warning as he sat in his office Monday. Prior to that he had critically wounded J. P. McCabe, a rancher.

“I just decided to clean it all up,” Chamberlain told officers after Sheriff Harry Patterson had disarmed him. Patterson ducked under the aged rancher's blaring guns when the latter attempted to shoot him, and succeeded in wresting his six-shooters from him.

Chamberlain said he “hated” McCabe because of differences over ranch land occupied by McCabe adjoining Chamberlain's property. He shot O'Neal and tried to shoot Patterson because they had ordered him to leave town as an undesirable character following his arrest on reckless driving charges some years ago.

O'Neal was wounded by four bullets. Pneumonia developed, making his recovery impossible. His wife, Mrs. Erma O'Neal, collapsed shortly before he died. Mrs. Mary O'Neal, mother of the chief, was en route to Santa Rosa by airplane from Couer D'Alene, Idaho, when he died.

McCabe, with seven bullet wounds, was reported slightly improved today.

Sheriff Patterson said that murder charges would be filed against Chamberlain, who had styled himself “Two Gun Al” for years, affecting 10 gallon hats and rough western dress. Chamberlain was taken to San Quentin prison after the shooting to escape a possible lynching threat.

MRS. WALEY IS SENTENCED TO 20 YEAR TERM

TACOMA, Wash., July 17.—UP—Margaret Thulin Waley, who six weeks ago bearded a train at Seattle and rode out of the State with her feet resting on a suitcase full of Weyerhaeuser ransom bills, packed her scanty belongings in city jail tonight for a longer ride—to the Federal detention farm at Milan, Mich.

Federal Judge E. E. Cushman today sentenced her to serve 20 years in prison for her part in abducting curly-haired George Weyerhaeuser, 9, and extorting $200,000 for his release June 1.

Red-haired Harmon Waley, 21, small-time crook whom the 19-year-old girl married “to reform” meanwhile realized his ambition of becoming a “big-time” gangster, although recognition came in a manner that he did not anticipate.

The government has incarcerated him in Alcatraz Federal prison, Uncle Sam's “Devil's Isle” for incorrigible criminals, located in the swift currents of San Francisco bay. There he will serve his 15-year term, exacted on his plea of guilty to the kidnapping. His companions are Al Capone, Machine Gun Kelly, Harvey Bailey, Alford Bates and other notorious gangsters and kidnapers. Waley may be released on Federal parole, if he has decided to be good, in 20 years.

His brown-haired, 19 year old wife may be released if she behaves for 13 years.

White-haired Judge Cushman, who rejected the woman's two attempts to plead guilty, denied the motions of Defense Counsel John Francis Dore for arrest of judgment and a new trial.

Dore said he had not decided whether or not to appeal the case to the Circuit Court of Appeals, San Francisco.

Mrs. Waley was convicted by a jury last Saturday on both counts of an indictment charging she violated the Lindbergh act by transporting kidnapped George Weyerhaeuser across a State line, and conspired to violate the law.

Judge Cushman sentenced her to serve 20 years on each count, but ordered the sentences to be concurrent. She may have 10 days of each month deducted for good behavior, so that she may be released when she is about 33.

New Deal Wins Test On TVA Power Plans

NEW ORLEANS, La., July 17.—(UP)—The New Deal scored a victory in the Fifth United States Circuit Court of Appeals today when the tribunal upheld the constitutionality of the Tennessee Valley Authority's “yardstick” electric program.

The decision, reversing an anti-TVA ruling by Federal Judge W. L. Grubb of Birmingham, swept aside all arguments that the Federal government may not go into the business of selling surplus electricity.

All three Appellate judges concurred in the opinion. They are Judges Nathan P. Bryan, Rufus E. Foster and Samuel E. Stibley. Attorneys for both sides had announced they would carry the case to the highest tribunal if the decision here went against them.

“It is within the province of the Congress to adopt any reasonable means, whether for lease or sale, for disposing of the surplus hydroelectric power at Wilson dam.” “It leads nowhere to say that the three-judge Circuit court held the Federal government, in exercising the use of transmission lines, to facilitate sales cannot fairly act within ‘State domain’ since he said by the courts to be unconstitutional at the same time it is acting reasonable or inappropriate,” the ruling continued.

“Of course it is true that the government of the United States cannot engage as will in private business, but it by no means follows that it cannot sell property which it owns, even though in doing so it may enter into competition with other public or private owners of property.

“We live under a dual government of divided powers. Federal and State, not under two separate governments of conflicting powers,” the court said in answering the challenge that Congress had no authority to establish such a vast operation in competition with private business within State domain.

“The power over navigable waters granted to the Federal government is not in conflict with but is necessarily superior to the dominion over such waters which means, whether for lease or sale, for disposing of the surplus hydroelectric power at Wilson dam.”

BUSTER KEATON SUED BY WIFE; WOMAN NAMED

HOLLYWOOD, July 17.—UP—Buster Keaton, dead pan film comedian, tonight was added to the list of romantic entanglements involving the Barton Sewells, wealthy Beverly Hills socialites.

He was sued for divorce by Mrs. Mae Elizabeth Keaton, who named Mrs. Leah Clappitt Sewell co-respondent.

Mrs. Keaton simultaneously sued Mrs. Sewell for $200,000 for alleged alienation of affections, charging she “willfully and wrongfully” enticed Keaton into a Santa Barbara, Calif., hotel on the night of July 4.

That was the date the Keatons separated, the suit said.

It is Mrs. Sewell's third venture into marital melées in the past months, her second into a alienation of affections suit. She is suing her husband for separate maintenance at present as an on-growth of the celebrated Emerson-Sewell wife-trading divorce suit, in which Mrs. Sewell was one of the principal roles.

Mrs. Sewell branded the charge “ridiculous,” declaring she had seen Keaton “only six or seven times in his life.”

Mrs. Keaton's divorce complaint, accusing her frozen-faced husband of misconduct with Mrs. Sewell at the Santa Barbara hotel.

She charged the comedian at “remained away from home” as usual times, was in the company of Mrs. Sewell frequently a spent several nights at her home.

She said the pair have been “duly intimate” in their relationship since July 1, when they turned to Hollywood from the “red” Santa Barbara episode.

Mrs. Keaton said she went to Mrs. Sewell's bedroom at the Santa Barbara hotel, and found it and the comedian disrobed in a same apartment. She asked $1,000 general damages for the love of her husband, $50,000 in asserted seduction, and $50,000 punitive damages and $50,000 for the alleged “ridiculous seduction” of her husband.

UTILITIES CO. HELD TO FACE SOLONS PROBE

WASHINGTON, July 17.—UP—Two officials of the Associated Gas & Electric Company destroyed their own records in connection with the fight on the Wheeler Rayburn bill and one offered the company's aid in restoring Western Union files mysteriously burned in Warren, Pa., the black lobbying committee was informed today.

The committee immediately ordered R. P. Herron of Warren, Pa., and his superior, E. W. O'Brien of Erie, Pa., to appear tomorrow and explain their acts. The disclosure came after the committee uncovered new details in the story of how Herron had solicited messages in Warren to flood the office of Representative D. J. Driscoll, Democrat, Pennsylvania, in opposition to the measure.

Witnesses admitted that names of signers were taken from a Warren city directory without the knowledge of the individuals involved and that a 19 year old Western Union messenger personally obtained signatures. Meanwhile a move was launched in the House to stop campaigns of this nature.

Representative Oliver Cross, D., Texas, introduced a bill making it a felony to sign fictitious signatures on messages to Congressmen favoring or opposing legislation.

At the same time, Philip Gadsden, chairman of the committee of public utility executives, issued a statement disclaiming any responsibility by the utilities groups generally for such activities as are reported to have occurred in Warren.

The House rules committee concluded its inquiry of the so-called "Brewster incident" today.

L. A. Shew, manager of the Western Union office in Erie, Pa., gave the testimony which caused the committee to summon O'Brien, Shew told of a meeting he had in Erie Saturday, July 13 at O'Brien's home at which Herron was present. The conversation centered, he said, about the missing Western Union records. These records involved the originals of telegrams sent from Warren to the office of Representative Driscoll. Their absence was noted when Driscoll departed to see the originals after he had checked personally and found that at least two persons whose names were signed to the messages denied knowledge of the telegrams.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 17.—UP—Giuseppe Renzetti, incoming Italian consul, arrived today to succeed Commendatore Ludovico Manzini, who has been Italian consul here the last five years.

Renzetti is a world war veteran. He would say nothing regarding the Italo-Abyssinian situation except to admit that "Italy needs Ethiopia."

Hollywood Film Shop

HOLLYWOOD, July 17.—UP—It's the eyes that turn the trick, whether it be winning a man's heart or a place in the movies.

This is the contention of Carole Lombard, who as a manicurist in "Hands Across the Table" will not use her hands half so much, she says, as she will her particular brand of optical allure.

"The romance a woman inspires the passion she engenders, the ways accomplished chiefly with her eyes," Carole insists. "Lovely hands, lovely looks, are important. All the laws not only of coquetry, but charm and sincerity, are dependent upon them."

"And let me tell you that you may have a distinguished voice, a fetching accent, an adorable figure, but a beautiful pair of eyes will do more to get you a chance in motion pictures than any other attribute."

Not only herself, she points out, but Marlene Dietrich, Claudette Colbert, Rosalind Keith, Frances Drake, Gail Patrick and countless others are effective as they are in closeups mainly because of their large and luminous eyes.

"Even when you meet them face to face," she says, "it's their eyes that impress you most of all. The pity is that using the eyes for charm is something that can't be taught. If affected it is at once artificial and of no use whatever. It has to be instinctive and, fortunately, with most women it is."

The eyes of Lombard and Dietrich are china blue; Claudette Colbert's are a rich dark brown; and Rosalind Keith's are the same.

Frances Drake's are a hazel gray, while Gail Patrick's are dark brown. Miss Patrick won her first screen role as the Panther because of the old slant of her eyes, and Katherine De Mille succeeded in finding a place on the screen because of the slumberous quality of her gaze.

These are two known instances. Just how large a part the eyes of the others have played in putting them there is harder to estimate, but it's easy enough to agree with Carole that their eyes are and always have been a tremendous asset.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY GO ROUND

WASHINGTON, July 17. No one has sunk into greater eclipse lately than that ebullient, ranting, debonair individual, Huey P. Long.

After staggering, weak-kneed and bleary, from the Senate floor after his futile filibuster, Huey has almost disappeared from the headlines which he so loves to adorn.

There are several reasons for this, some not so complimentary to the alleged Kingfish.

One is that Huey has not been as faithful a traveler on the water-wagon as during the heyday of his rampages last winter. The water-wagon is one of the best barometers of Huey's effectiveness. When he is on it he can talk and walk rimes around most of his Senatorial colleagues. When he is off, his effectiveness is nil.

Another reason is that Roosevelt, with his high tax program, stole Huey's best thunder.

Then there is the effect of certain rookie Senators who decided to call the Kingfish's bluff. They resorted to the simple expedient of sitting in the last row of the Senate and listening to his blarney.

Even for a man with Huey's hide, it was downright disheartening.

So the Kingfish, who is as good a strategist as they make 'em, decided to fade out of the picture. He has done this before. His policy is that of any good general: When the battle is too hot, retreat, wait for the proper moment, then come back.

A lot of people, of course, claim Huey can't come back. But to one who came back after the Sands Point, L. I., washroom episode, no "come-back" is impossible.

GOLD DIVINER

La Luz Mining Company has just been restrained from selling its stock. In doing this the Securities-Exchange Commission staged an unusual demonstration.

The demonstration was to test the accuracy of a gold-divining instrument by which the company located its gold.

The La Luz Company claimed to have a vein of ore which would mine $30 a ton—exceptionally high content. In substantiation of this it cited the word of Professor Philip Haas of Los Angeles, described as a "scientist and geologist with a world-wide reputation as inventor of the mineral indicator."

But the SEC was skeptical. It wanted to know how Professor Haas and his mineral indicator could locate gold. So it asked the Professor to come to Washington. There members of the Commission arranged a test.

Six large match boxes were arranged on the floor. One box contained a gold nugget worth about $200. Professor Haas was asked to locate the match box which held gold.

He applied himself with great earnestness. The mineral indicator was held in the right hand. It consisted chiefly of a weight suspended

NEW YORK INSIDE OUT By DON O'MALLEY

NEW YORK, July 17.—The town will miss Oliver Herford, who died a couple of weeks ago the acknowledged champion of New York wit.

Herford was past seventy and had lived more or less in retirement towards the end. A slender wit, he would dart into the Players Club for his mail, thumb a note or two as he slipped out and furtively find his way back to his apartment on East 18th Street, where with his wife, Pezzy, he lived nearly thirty years.

Herford was cartoonist, poet, playwright and illustrator, but back around the turn of the century he had a tremendous reputation as a wit of the first order. His barbs were sardonic and brilliant, and he tossed them off as lightly and swiftly as an elf.

"Oliver," said one of the Players' great lures to him one evening, "I have been grossly insulted. Just as I was passing that group over there I overheard some one say he would give me $20 to resign from the club."

"Hold out for a hundred," replied Herford. "You'll get it."

DELICATE. The halls of the Players no longer echo with his sallies, but memories of his flashing repartee will linger on. One of his famous observations occurred when he strolled into the club one afternoon and up to the bulletin board, where members' cards are posted for late, if not always lamented, members. Herford paused, and just as he scanned the cards, he turned away quickly with the remark: "Never the right ones."

But he had a quiet and a tender side. His one declared ambition was to toss an egg into an electric fan. One of the most delicate examples of his humor was a characterization of his wife. A friend, observing that Herford wore an attractive hat of cloth that resembled a patch on Tom Sawyer's pants, remarked about it:

"Why do you wear that thing, Oliver?"

"Oh, it's a whim of Pezzy's."

"Good heavens! Do you have to yield to that to extend to your wife's whims?"

"You forget," answered Herford. "Pezzy has a whim of iron."

DOMINO CORNER. One of the pleasantest cafes in New York is the Lafayette, at 20th Street and University Place, a meeting place with a foreign flavor, where writers, painters and musicians have gathered for many years. The place gives a French touch to the Washington Square neighborhood, with something of the air of a Paris brasserie.

The stone floor, dark oak woodwork and wide, deep windows belong to a more leisurely age.

The little white building is also a hotel, but the cafe in the corner is the general rendezvous. Here local chess, checker and domino players collect for tournaments, or sit talking for hours over their wine or beer.

A French minkie built the Lafayette about 1870. Later it changed hands and became the famous Cafe Martin, which artists of the town made an immensely popular spot.

In 1912 Martin sold out to Raymond Orteig, who emphasized the old policies instead of making them modern. Today young jazz sophisticates won't know what to do with themselves in the Lafayette.

But it has great charm for those with a philosophical turn of mind who like to walk slowly and sit long.

MAHAN IS NOT BEING HELD BY UTAH OFFICERS

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, July 17.—UP—Police and county authorities today denied reports that William Mahan, fugitive kidnaper of little George Weyerhaeuser, had been captured here.

The report was published by the Deseret News which credited its information to a "reliable source."

Denials of Department of Justice agents here and in Washington were added to the local officials' statements.

The Deseret News said it had learned that Mahan was captured five days ago in railroad yards near here.

The only other report from authorities searching for the former Washington State bank robber and suspected kidnaper in the Weyerhaeuser case tended to place Mahan in the Midwest.

Sheriff Fred Benton of Grand Island, Neb., broadcast a warning to Nebraska and Kansas authorities asking them to apprehend a man whom seven Nebraska had identified as Mahan thru police pictures.

The suspect stopped last night at a Grand Island tourist cabin and this morning was suspected of having stolen license plates from an automobile at the camp.

Sheriff Fred Benton sent warnings to Kansas authorities to watch roads leading from Grand Island.

The suspect registered at the tourist camp as Harvey M. Williams of San Antonio, Tex. He was driving a small coupe when he left.

Shortly afterwards, J. B. Hendrix, Wyoming cattle buyer, missed his license plates. Hendrix reported the loss to the Grand Island police. He was shown several photographs and selected one of Mahan as resembling the suspect.

McGill is a well known Richmond resident. He attended the local schools. At the present time he is employed at a local manufacturing plant.

Why do you wear that thing, Oliver?

Oh, it's a whim of Pezzy's.

Good heavens! Do you have to yield to that to extend to your wife's whims?

You forget, answered Herford. Pezzy has a whim of iron.

Noted Drama To Be Staged In Greek Theater

Sean O'Casey's "Within the Gates," the second of the Greek Theater Drama Festival plays, to be given on Friday evening, July 19 at 8:15 P. M. has been proclaimed by George Jean Nathan as one of the finest and most thrilling beautiful pieces of dramatic writing of recent years, exceeding all others in wisdom, humor, truth and sheer beauty.

When the final curtain falls, one feels that here at last is the true masterpiece expected of O'Casey. That the play will arouse profitable, if violent discussion, is certain. Critics have called it one of the noble dramas of our time, a symphony of life and death reflected in the coming and going of humanity in London's Hyde Park.

It is full of moving incidents and varied situations, telling of life and death, love and hate, sorrow and penitence, scorn for hypocritical sham and pretence. Its symbolism will arouse shocks of emotion in the audience while they are moved by its powerful beauty.

Hollo Peters and Peggy Converse will have the leading roles; Fred Blanchard and Carol Eberts will play important parts, and the supporting cast will consist largely of those who made the "Taming of the Shrew" a memorable production last week.

Julius Evans assisted by Joan Hathaway, directors of the Shakespear play, are directing this tremendous production, also.

The advance sale of tickets indicates an even larger attendance than that of the first drama festival play, whose success has brought many requests for a repetition from those who saw it, as well as those who neglected their opportunity. There will be only one production of "Within the Gates."

CAN YOU AFFORD TEN PER CENT HIGHER Prices For Food, Clothing, Drugs?

Your cost of living will go up-swiftly and surely- if Governor Merriam signs the pending Chain Store Tax Bill.

This Bill will force us, against our will, to either raise prices to you or quit. It will up your bills for food, drugs, clothing and necessities TEN per cent.

This means California families will have to pay out of their own thin pocketbooks Forty eight million ($48,000,000) dollars more a year due to wasteful methods and inefficiency.

If Chain Stores quit, 50,000 people will lose their jobs. Who else can employ them? These California families will lose Seventy million ($70,000,000) dollars a year in salaries and wages.

We buy Two Hundred and Thirty Million ($230,000,000) dollars worth of products a year from California farmers. We pay millions in taxes and rents annually. Do you want to take this money away from the state by putting us out of business through taxing us $500.00 each year for every store while our competitors pay $1.00 a year?*

The common people - consumers employees and farmers - will be the ones to suffer most from this tax.

Who will benefit by it? The joker in this bill is this:

The real benefactors from destruction of the Chain Stores will not be the independent retailers but powerful middlemen who want to restore wasteful, inefficient methods -- and make you pay the cost.

Help keep your living costs down.

Help save 50,000 California families from losing their jobs.

Help California farmers who stand to lose purchasers for $230,000,000 a year of farm products.

Write or wire Honorable FRANK F. MERRIAM, Sacramento, California, asking him to VETO the Chain Store tax bill. Do it today!

Common House Fly Is One of Worst Disease Carriers Among Insects

By CLAUD NORTH CHRISMAN, M.D.

THE common house fly may appear to be a small subject for a health column. When we inquire into and know his life habits we perceive that as a disseminator of disease germs he is a far greater menace to the health of the community than any other insect or animal. He kills more people in one way or another than all the snakes in the world.

His general make up and habits of life, all provide him with the means to spread almost any known disease. His body and legs are covered with fine hairs. Each leg is provided with pads studded with fine hairs which enable it to walk over highly polished surfaces or up the ceiling without a wobble.

These fine hairs stick to germs as well as to the ceiling, and carry potential disease wherever the fly goes. The house fly does not bite—there are flies that do, but not this one. He cannot eat solid food. Sitting on a lump of sugar, it may appear he is eating it, but he is not. He throws out some saliva to moisten the sugar and then sticks up the solution. He may regurgitate that and suck it up again.

He will eat anything that is soluble, but his great preference is for decaying animal and vegetable matter. So he comes in contact with all kinds of filth, which clings to his body and legs. A single fly speck may contain many disease germs.

Has Filthy Habits

His habits are filthy. He visits many dirty places and then comes and sits down on your food, spitting out saliva to dissolve the food.

The fly is thus a filthy and dangerous visitor. He spreads typhoid fever, dysentery, cholera and intestinal troubles of children. Scarlet fever, measles, and tuberculosis may be carried by his contact with the saliva and spittle of those having the disease to healthy persons. Small pox, carbuncles and blood poisoning are easily transferred by the fly.

He sits on the babies' lips, eyes and hands, on your table, the dishes and the food, always spreading the dirt on his feet and body. Is it any wonder that health authorities consider him a dreadful health menace? The real wonder is, that we have been so careless and indifferent about the fly.

The campaign, started some years ago to "Swat The Fly" has finally made us conscious of it. The number of eggs a single fly lays is between two and three thousand, and there may be ten or twelve generations in a season.

When you swat one fly in the spring, you are really killing many potential millions of flies. But when you swat a fly he is dead. You hit one and it drops to the floor apparently smashed beyond recognition; no flutter, no movement. But in five or ten minutes one leg will twitch, a wing will quiver, and very soon he is up and away.

Prevention Most Important

Swatting, traps, fly paper, door and window screens are ways to dispose of them after they appear, but their prevention is far more important. The problem is partly solved in the cities by sanitary toilets, covered garbage cans, and quick disposal of decaying vegetable and animal matter, but the problem in the country must be approached from a different angle.

There is only one way to exterminate flies, and that is to do away with their breeding places. This must be a community action, as flies often travel miles. To rid ourselves of flies, we must know something of their life cycle. This includes the egg, the larva or maggot, pupa or chrysalis.

The female deposits her eggs in favorite places. Fresh manure, garbage cans or fresh decaying animal or vegetable matter. The eggs usually hatch out within twenty-four hours; the maggots are white, smooth and cylindrical, about one-half inch long.

Having no legs, they move by contracting and expanding their bodies. They eat ravenously and grow rapidly. This stage lasts from four to seven days. At the end of this stage, they become restless and move from the feeding ground to some quiet place, like the under side of boards, or stones, when they turn into the pupa or chrysalis.

On Mint Sauce

A mint sauce should not be boiled. You cook all the ingredients in a saucepan over a very slow fire for about thirty minutes. To a quart of a cup chopped mint leaves add half a cup vinegar, a quarter of a cup water and a quarter of a cup sugar. Either brown or granulated sugar may be used.

About Russia's Great Horticulturist

By TALBOT LAKE

FAMOUS horticulturists have been few and far between. In this country Luther Burbank was not only the greatest, but almost the only well-known scientist in this field. Russia, however, had a man who did some things to fruits that surpass Burbank's best, according to the magazine.

Asia. He was Ivan Michurin, who was lost in obscurity for most of his life, and only gained the recognition due him when he died recently at 85.

Of noble blood, Michurin was born in 1854 in the provincial wilderness of central Russia, where he had ample opportunity to get acquainted with nature.

When twenty-one he moved to Kozlov, about 250 miles south of Moscow, where the thermometer went 30 degrees below zero in the winter.

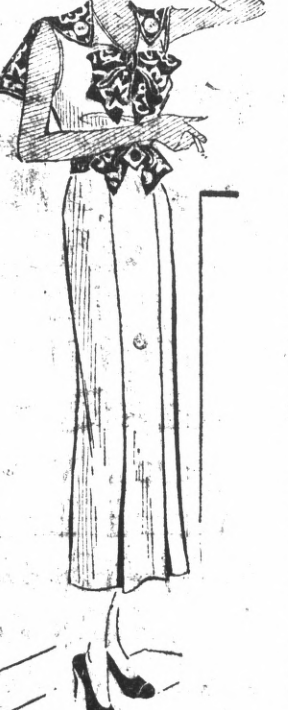

Here he began his life's work, while he made a bare living working for the railroad. His ambition was to cross luscious southern fruits with hardy trees of the north so that natives of the Asiatic and Siberian regions might have more of the necessary fruits.

The development of his ultimate success came in three periods. He first tried to acclimate southern fruit, but after many years this method failed. Then he tried cross-breeding the southern variety with their hardy northern counterparts. This also was a failure because the northern strain was too strong for the more delicate southern kind.

Of desperation came the wholly revolutionary idea of breeding the southern variety with trees of altogether different botanical family. This experiment continued for many years, and at last success came.

Michurin lately worked under the aegis of the Soviet government, which finally recognized his genius, but he still remained the unassuming man who struggled so long against odds. Once he had an offer to come to the United States and work out his plans, but he considered it too far away from Kozlov, and waited another dozen years before his own government recognized him.

Guide to Charm

Wrinkle Can Be Lessened By Massage

By JACQUELINE HUNT

SKIN TROUBLES that make women unhappy are not limited to enlarged pores, blackheads and pimples. There is another type of blemish that women write about daily—wrinkles. One thing is certain, you do not need to have lines any deeper than those kindly ones that show how bravely you have met life.

Frankly, a face that is devoid of all tiny lines is as characterless as a waxen model. But the little character lines about which we are speaking have nothing to do with the sagging, deeply etched lines that so plainly reveal a neglected skin and bitter, selfish thoughts.

To remove the latter type of lines, you must learn to smile—to lift up the muscles of the mouth, cheeks and smooth the forehead. Once a line has appeared, you cannot completely erase it, but you can soften it until it no longer mars your appearance.

This is especially true of the wrinkles that appear on a rough, dry, sensitive skin. Normally the glands should secrete sufficient oil to keep the skin lubricated, moist and supple, but living is such a complex, artificial matter these days that few skins are able to take care of themselves.

You must care for your skin constantly, pamper it, soften it and tone it if you want it to remain smooth, clear and free from beauty-destroying lines.

The wrinkled skin should be washed once daily with a bland soap and tepid water for a deep, thorough cleansing. Rinse away every trace of the soap and apply a really heavy film of softening cream. Massage and pat, going over and over the wrinkled areas with gentle, lifting upward and outward strokes. Leave the cream on the skin until you are ready to go to sleep, then wipe away all of the oil that has not been absorbed, then give it a vigorous patting with a pad of cotton soaked in cold skin tonic.

For daytime cleansing use a good cold cream or all purpose cream. The light creams that melt constantly are good for the oily or normal skins, but you need something richer and heavier. Wipe away the soiled cream and rinse the skin with cold water before applying fresh makeup. You will be wise in investing in a good foundation cream in addition to the cold cream. It will protect your skin from the drying, burning sun and wind.

This treatment will help restore the natural lubrication to the skin and will prevent the formation of new lines. Best of all, it will soften those you already have.

These women who are concerned with sailing clothes are receptive to loose tunics and slacks of the specially treated silk which won't harden, crack, etc., and that they also like waterproof lightweight cottons such as sheeting in the suit composed of hooded windbreaker blouse with slide fastener and slacks, introduced last season and found so practical that it was repeated.

Another type of garment in demand just now is the fishing and sailing costume. It is quite businesslike and happily devoid of any of the so-called feminine touches.

QUESTION: "I am thirty-five. I have had a very bad habit of drinking milk curdles and now I have felds and deep lines over each eye. Is there any way in which they can be removed?"

ANSWER: "Mrs. E. J." Treatment for the removing of the lines will be of little help unless you overcome the habit that caused them in the first place. If the blinking and wrinkling were caused from nervousness or eyestrain, try to have the underlying cause corrected. Proper diet, outdoor exercise and sufficient rest are essential in treating nervousness. Try to overcome the habit and then try patting a small amount of rich cream or petroleum jelly into your eyelids at night. In the morning remove any cream that remains and use a soothing eye lotion that will tone the delicate tissues.

QUESTION: "My hair is the dirty blonde shade, very oily, straight and hard to manage. Would egg shampoos or vinegar rinses help the condition?"

ANSWER: "Jane." Egg shampoos are non-drying and hence best for dry hair or delicate shades of red hair that do not react well even with the blandest of soaps. For you I would suggest liquid castile soap to which a small amount of tincture of green soap has been added. The latter is antiseptic, will remove the excess oil and help correct the scalp condition that leads to oily hair. Be sure to rinse your hair thoroughly and use the strained juice of two lemons in the final rinse water. This will leave your hair fluffy, bring out all the golden lights and lift you out of the dirty blonde class after the first one or two treatments. Shampoo weekly at first.

QUESTION: "I am invited to a church wedding soon. Would it be proper to wear a new dress?"

ANSWER: "H. V." The first wedding anniversary is celebrated as the paper wedding; the second, as the cake; the third, as the leather; the fourth, as the silk; the fifth, as the wood; the sixth, as the iron; the seventh, as the wool; the eighth, as the bronze; the ninth, as the pottery; the tenth, as the tin wedding.

QUESTION: "How soon after the arrival of a baby should a baby shower be given?"

ANSWER: "R. H." About three or four weeks after the newborn's arrival. Wait a week or two longer if the mother is not feeling very strong. For the convenience of the mother, it is wise to plan to give the shower at the home of the mother being showered.

QUESTION: "I am invited to a church wedding soon. Would it be proper to wear a new dress?"

ANSWER: "H. V." The gift should be sent to the bride some time before the wedding takes place.

Uncrushable Linens Used In Tints for Sport Wear

By IRENE VAIL

New York—Linens are wanted for sports clothes, the uncrushables, of course. One reason for this is that never has linen been shown in such delightful shades, Heliotrope, peonia, and a rich wine are the newest and nicest among the dark shades, while sage and all the old blues, pinks and yellows—not to mention greens—line up for inspection.

Play togs for women now include bicycle costumes. From smart hops everywhere the story is the same: girls' women togs, are asking for culottes, explaining that they want them for bicycling. Shades of the bloomer period! It's the slack, short or the culotte—also divided, which women bicyclists want today.

QUESTION: "Please tell me how the first ten wedding anniversaries are celebrated—R. H."

ANSWER: "The first wedding anniversary is celebrated as the paper wedding; the second, as the cake; the third, as the leather; the fourth, as the silk; the fifth, as the wood; the sixth, as the iron; the seventh, as the wool; the eighth, as the bronze; the ninth, as the pottery; the tenth, as the tin wedding."

QUESTION: "How soon after the arrival of a baby should a baby shower be given?"

ANSWER: "R. H." About three or four weeks after the newborn's arrival. Wait a week or two longer if the mother is not feeling very strong. For the convenience of the mother, it is wise to plan to give the shower at the home of the mother being showered.

QUESTION: "I am invited to a church wedding soon. Would it be proper to wear a new dress?"

ANSWER: "H. V." The gift should be sent to the bride some time before the wedding takes place.

Blueberry Is Ideal for Pie, Jelly, or Cake

By JUDITH WILSON

THOSE who enjoy blueberries, whether the wild variety that grows in the woods or the big cultivated ones that look more like grapes, will want to serve them often now that the season is underway. Blueberries or their close relations, the huckleberries, are equally good fresh or cooked, although the flavor is entirely different when the fruit is heated.

Both cook in a short while—three to five minutes—and can be used in muffins, griddle cakes, puddings, pies and cobblers, or jellies, jams, sauces and relishes for our winter tables. Serve them as many ways as you can think of both fresh and luscious and cooked.

Blueberry Shortcake
Mix together two and one-half cups flour, one teaspoon salt, two and one-half teaspoons baking powder, one-half cup shortening, one to five tablespoons sugar (depending on your sweet tooth), one cup milk and one beaten egg. Handle as for baking powder biscuits. Roll the dough quite thin, spread with butter, fold over and roll again. Cut with a large biscuit cutter for individual shortcakes. Put fresh blueberries that have been slightly crushed and sugared between the halves of the split shortcakes and on top. Top with whipped cream.

Blueberry Roll
Wash one cup blueberries and drain thoroughly, add two tablespoons powdered sugar and crush. Sprinkle two tablespoons water and let stand until softened. Heat the berries and sugar together, then add the gelatin and stir until dissolved. Remove from the heat and cool. Beat two egg whites until stiff and fold into the berry mixture. Set aside while you prepare the roll.

Sift together one cup cake flour, one and one-fourth cups sugar, one and one-half cups granulated sugar. Beat four egg yolks and two whites until light and foamy and combine with the dry ingredients. Flavor with vanilla. Line a long, narrow pan with wax paper and pour in the batter. One-fourth inch deep. Bake in a slow oven about half an hour. When done turn out on a cloth sprinkled with powdered sugar. Remove the crusts, spread with the filling and roll carefully. Serve in slices with whipped cream garnish. This will make eight portions.

Glazed Berries
This makes a good sauce for vanilla ice cream, plain cake, crisp rice, flake cereal or a meat accompaniment. Melt three tablespoons butter in a skillet and into the butter sprinkle two cups of washed and drained berries that have been coated with one-half cup sugar. Shake them around in the pan, two or three minutes, until each little berry is plump and shiny as a little black mirror. Garnish with dabs of whipped cream.

MODERN WOMEN

Grandmothers, Despite Their Years, Do Not Always Give the Best Advice

By MARIAN MAYS MARTIN

GRANDMOTHERS feel qualified to hand out advice to their children's children, and have a way of expecting that no one should have the slightest doubt of the excellence of the advice. They forget, too often, that the world changes and that conditions today are not at all what they were when their own grandmothers were laying down the law to them.

A grandmother speaks: "Never cook a meal for your husband—if you once start you will have to keep it up. The less you know the less demands will be made on you. It's the incoherent, tent women that are waited on hand and foot, and the competent ones who develop into household drudges."

Now, I ask you, is that good advice? It might have been good advice, but the girl who uses it today is bound to take an awful chance.

You and Your Child

Less Aggressive Child Often Wronged

By JANE HERBERT COWARD

ELEVEN-YEAR-OLD Philip is a quiet, bookish lad, his nine-year-old sister, Muriel, a vivacious, mischievous girl. Each of these youngsters eats from life more or less what he is after. But Muriel gets more out of life than Philip. Philip's mother for an advance on his next week's allowance. He asked for a quarter, explaining that there was a particular detective magazine he wanted. He spoke calmly, in his usual gentle and refined way.

Mother could have let Philip have that quarter without further ado. But from force of habit the habit of opposing Muriel's insistent demands, doubtless, she said, "No, Philip, you can't have a quarter." "Oh, gee, mom, why not?" It was a feeble protest. Mother saw an opportunity to exercise control and rose to the occasion. "A quarter is a lot of money to throw away for a magazine, Philip." The boy pouted and shuffled out of the room. He picked up a book, scanned it casually at first, and before long was lost in its pages.

Philip started involuntarily when the screen door slammed shut. It was Muriel. "Mom," she shouted across the hall and on her way through the dining room. "Give me a nickel, hurry." "What do you want it for?" "Gee, mom, don't waste my time. The ice cream man is waiting." While mother hesitated, Muriel ran back and forth between the front door and the kitchen. She was keeping an eye on the ice cream man. Then she gave a frantic scream and bawled, "It's going away. Give me a nickel." Mother dug into a pocket and brought out a nickel. She was glad to get rid of the child.

That's how it works in many families. The child who demands more gets more. When this happens it isn't fair to the less aggressive child who may begin to imagine that he is unloved. Try being more generous with such a child. Even the score occasionally with an unexpected treat.

Short Cuts

When salads are served as the main course of luncheon, supper or afternoon bridge, dainty sandwiches are a more suitable accompaniment than plain sliced bread and butter.

To serve with ham, steak and other meats try bananas dipped in egg and bread crumbs and pan fried. Serve as a vegetable.

SESSION TO BE CALLED BY ENVOYS

commenced with arms must be completed with arms," Premier Benito Mussolini asserted today, referring to the Italo-Ethiopian dispute in an article under his signature in Popolo d'Italia.

Entitling his article 'On Our Way' Duce wrote:

"We have mobilized five regular army and five black shirt divisions. We have constituted an African Italy. No big power would tolerate the concentration of hundreds of thousands of armed barbarians on the frontiers of her colonies. If Britain and France were under similar threat they would proceed directly to apply sweeping sanctions."

"That is what Italy will do," Duce wrote.

"The Ethiopians have attacked. Therefore the responsibility is theirs. Italy will proceed to radical, definitive disarmament of the Negroes which will serve to free 2,000,000 slaves, civilize 10,000,000 men, reclaim lands and open markets to trade."

"Italy needs nobody, but everybody needs friendship."

which was completed and dedicated November 15, 1934.

At Alvarado park, long in need of overhauling, a large general improvement plan went into effect with the construction of two comfort stations, the planting of trees and shrubs, building of roadways, paths and retaining walls, the cleaning of the creek, and tree surgery for the preservation of the trees.

Finally, $5,113.00 was set aside for the entire rehabilitation of the Alvarado park pavilion, including the construction of walls and roof, benches and tables. The park is now an ideal picnic spot for Richmond.

SCHOOL JOB

On August 3, the Woodrow Wilson school was given a grading and resurfacing job on the school playground.

The painting and rehabilitating of the Point Richmond natatorium was probably the largest of the recreational projects in the Richmond area. The entire building was rehabilitated, including a large painting program both inside and outside, throughout the tank and the locker-rooms. Further work at the Fairmont school progressed with a wall construction job, and erection of a wire fence. The tennis courts at the City Hall were also given a wire brushing and replacement of rusted fence, and a paint job over all with green paint, including the wooden wind break and field house.

The Nystrom school, so far neglected by the city sponsors and SERA engineers, was given a complete two-coat paint job, inside and outside, a total of 35,000 square feet of painted surface.

Also the Longfellow school was given a high, painted ornamental fence surrounding the building. Further Nystrom school work included a re-shingled roof, with fire-proof composition, and anchor chain link fence.

Finally, the Roosevelt junior high school playground was graded and jumping pits dug, and at Peres school, a painting and varnishing job was done to the school rooms, office and rest rooms, auditorium, stage and vestibule, and most of the school room chairs.

Love caecers and a huzzza for the doctor.

ONLY WOULD BELIEVE

It earnestly hope that he is correct in his conclusions, but somehow or other I perceive an compelled to believe that his "discovery" will not halt the fast-fading youth of myself and a large number of my friends, all of whom are entering what is called for lack of a more euphonious appellation, "the autumn of life." Once in a while in order to put on a front we swell out our chests and declare we are as good as we were 20 years ago. Perhaps that attitude is good for our morale but our daily morning look-see in the mirror convinces us, that despite our optimism we fail to fall in the category of "tanning youth."

Waxes it someone who said: "On for one hour of youthful joy bring back my twentieth spring. I'd rather laugh a bright-eyed boy than reign a grey-beard king."

Although we confess we are openly receptive to any such proposition of discovery, as advanced by the good doctor, logic and facts, plus the experience of the ages induce us to label the announcement as among "the dreams that never come true."

NO KIDDING OF CALENDAR

There is no use in trying to kid the calendar, these old playboys do not deceive any one but themselves and I am inclined to try on the mumm of the calendar. "The days of our years are three score years and ten; and if by reason of strength they be four score yet is their strength, labor and sorrow, for it is soon cut out and we fly away."

THE REAL DESIDERATUM

The great desideratum, after all is not that we live always in the frolicsome and carefree period, but when the summons come, conscious in the knowledge of a life well lived, not for soot but service and with a mind and heart free of evil, we "wrap the mantle of our couch about us and lie down to pleasant dreams."

VETERAN IS QUESTIONED IN SLAYINGS

Borklund and Undersheriff J. Milne, both of Tacoma, deputy Pierce County Prosecutor Stewart H. Elliott and W. K. Bolling, Federal bureau of investigation agent, questioned Taylor, Miss Kelly and Thomas.

WOUNDED IN WAR

Taylor was wounded in the leg while serving in the A. E. F. He has been convicted four times on burglary charges in Washington. He was paroled May 1 this year.

Each month since then he has been reporting to Police Chief Chadwick, one of the slain officers.

Those officers who believed Taylor was the slayer said he probably killed Chadwick and others when they recognized him.

Russian River Resort Is Hit By Grass Fire

SANTA ROSA, July 17.—UP—A brush fire that suddenly got out of control today destroyed the summer home of J. F. Barrett, San Francisco contractor, and for a time threatened to wipe out the exclusive summer residential settlement of Russian River.

The fire was finally brought under control by county fire crews and the fire department from Eureka, six miles away, aided by volunteer volunteers.

Summer Park consists of from 50 to 100 cottages, owned principally by San Francisco and Oakland residents.

BOARD ORDERS INCREASES IN ASSESSED VALUE

SAN FRANCISCO, July 17.—UP—The state board of equalization today ordered increases in assessed valuation ratios of various counties, meanwhile holding for further consideration advances which drew strong protests from San Bernardino, Mendocino and other counties.

Increases approved included the following:

San Joaquin county, 16 percent from 42.11 percent ratio; Del Norte, 16 percent from ratio of 5.29; Yuba, five percent from ratio of 46.19 percent; Butte, 19 percent from ratio of 43.53 percent; Sutter, 25 percent from ratio of 37.21; Yolo, 19 percent from 14.18; Riverside, 50 percent from 31.88; Orange, 25 percent from 34.84; Ventura, 15 percent from 43.45.

Action on a proposed 35 percent increase for Mendocino county, approved on a 37.04 basis, was delayed following protests from county officials.

The board proposes by the increases to change assessment ratios until they approximate 50 percent of real value.

Webb Rules On State Employee Civil Service

SAN FRANCISCO, July 17.—UP—Attorney General U. S. Webb today ruled the State personnel board has the power to change the classification, grade or salary of any employee having civil service standing.

In an opinion to J. W. Ash, assistant executive secretary of the state compensation insurance fund, however, Webb indicated that the board would be required to exercise discretion in changing the status of an employee, although a complaint would have to prove that discrimination had not been exercised.

New Agreement On AAA Is Given Approval By U.S.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 17.—UP—The regional office of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration here, has been notified that the new amended agreement and license for the California fresh deciduous tree fruits industry have been given final approval.

The agreement, which becomes effective at 12.01 a. m. Saturday, July 20, covers shipments of Bartlett pears, winter pears, cherries, plums, peaches and apricots.

L. W. Gray, manager of the agreement with headquarters in Sacramento, advised today that as soon as the agreement becomes effective the Bartlett pear commodity committee will place rail concentration control into effect. The reason, Gray said, is not because of a large crop, but because it is desired to stabilize day to day shipments before the total of pear shipments reaches a peak.

Presbyterians To Open Synod At S. F. Today

SAN FRANCISCO, July 17.—UP—Approximately 700 delegates from 273 Presbyterian churches in California and Nevada tonight were expected to attend the California synod here July 18-24.

Speakers will include Dr. Robert E. Speer, secretary of the board of foreign missions, and Dr. Henry Masters of Philadelphia. Dr. William Roberts, San Francisco, will serve as moderator.

Nominees to succeed Dr. Roberts as moderator were expected to include Rev. Hugh Dobbin, Berkeley and Rev. Edward A. Weber, of the San Francisco Theological Seminary at San Anselmo.

The Women's Synodical Society for Missions will meet with the synod.

DR. AND MRS. C. W. COLE have just returned from a vacation spent at Lake Tahoe.

Officials Will Be Present At Valuation Meet

MARTINEZ, July 17.—Four Contra Costa county officers, Auditor A. N. Sullenger, Assessor George O. Meese, Deputy Assessor John Reid and Deputy Auditor D. M. Teeter will go to Sacramento tomorrow to attend a hearing on the state board of equalization program to raise Contra Costa assessments to make them 50 percent of true value.

Inasmuch as the board has already arbitrarily raised the assessments of some counties assessing at rates lower than 50 percent and has lowered the assessments of others, it is considered a foregone conclusion that the assessments fixed by Assessor Meese will be increased.

Meese for years has been assessing at approximately 39 percent of true value. A 50 percent true value assessment in this county will necessitate a board order to the supervisors raising Meese's figures about 27 percent.

The state board program is being carried out to equalize assessments throughout the state in view of the return of public utility properties to county rolls and other considerations.

Increase of valuations would permit lowering of the tax rate in this county, provided governmental expenditure demands are not increased.

Dewey Camp Will Name Delegates

GAS TAX COIN IS DOUBLED BY NEW LAW

for that purpose, the remainder will be used to repave heavily traveled city streets. What thoroughfares will thus be benefited will not be determined by the city until after the completion of the Macdonald avenue job.

In a statement commenting upon the signing of the measure, former Senator Arthur H. Breed, president of the California State Automobile Association, said: "That the cities shall now receive an additional share of the gasoline tax is but a natural evolution of California's street and highway financing plan. The time had arrived to take this means of assuring a better balance of street and highway construction as between the state, rural areas and municipalities. It is an essential part of a program designed to insure comparable improvements on state highways, county roads and city streets."

The money is to be spent for the same general purposes and under the same state supervision as is now provided by law. The new allocation, like the present one-quarter cent, is in the nature of a guarantee to the cities. The state is empowered, however, to spend more within any city if it desires. The augmented fund is to be spent for acquisition of rights of way, maintenance and construction of important city streets, including state highway routes. In the event that state highway routes are adequately cared for, the entire sum may be spent on other city streets of major importance.

MAJOR OPERATION

A major operation was performed on John Otis Isilton of Richmond at the county hospital yesterday by Drs. E. W. Merithew and E. H. Morken.
